

Certification Course Interdisciplinary Fascia Therapy (IFT®)

A New, Evidence-Based,
Sustainable Methodology
for Pain and Stress Reduction

For physicians, physiotherapists, chiropractors, Rolfers™, masseurs,
and other medical professionals

January 3–8, 2019

The IFT Method and the Fascia-ReleaZer were developed based on Christopher-Marc Gordon's many years of practical experience and scientific research.

The IFT Method has been taught since 2000.

Unique Aspects of the Certification Program

- An opportunity to learn new techniques focusing on neurophysiology, the autonomic nervous system, fascial receptors, and heart rate variability (HRV) training
- 16 evidence-based studies on the topic of IFT
- Highly sustainable and effective therapeutic approaches
- Proven rapid effectiveness of the manual grip sequences
- Self-therapy methods for patients
- Specially designed self-therapy methods for therapists
- Manual and instrument-based methods with innovative cutting-edge tools

The six-day foundation course will be held in Stuttgart, the state capital of Baden-Württemberg (southwest Germany). Located just a short drive from the picturesque Black Forest, Stuttgart and its surrounding area offer a host of attractive opportunities for leisure activities – ranging from outstanding hiking and skiing trails to the natural beauty of Lake Constance, and much more besides. Combine your participation in the course with a relaxing winter break. We'll be happy to provide you with tips on sights to see and places to visit.

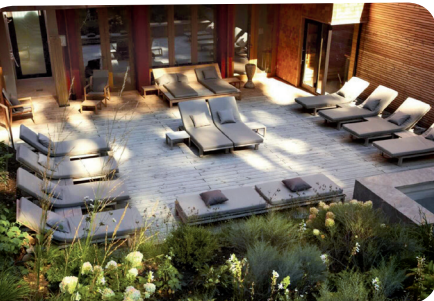

Dr. Robert Schleip, PhD

Prof. Dr. David Martin

Event Location

The six-day foundation course will be held in the charming Waldhotel Stuttgart – located in unspoiled countryside close to the city of Stuttgart, providing an ideal setting for the IFT Foundation Course. The hotel can be easily reached by public transport.
